

“And Once the old World has turned on its Axle so that the new Dawn can dawn then, ah, then ...”

I've made this 3-by-4.3-metre drawing with the intention of having it incorporated in the public space.

You can help me realise this goal.

I'm putting up this image to be downloaded freely from the site; you can print it in a range of poster sizes, as well as in its original size.

You can share the image digitally after downloading it. But you can also post it on walls in all sorts of places. I hope that doing so will foster social discourse about what “a new dawn” could look like. What is it that we dream of, what can we not do without, and how can we help each other to make the world just a little more inviting and humane?

Feel free to come up with a personal approach to this project. You might hold an open-air symposium, a kitchen table talk, a Zoom conference, or a series of classes. An acknowledgement is required, however: (© image Stijn Peeters – text Angela Carter).

If you let me know what your plans are, I can provide you with extra information about the backgrounds and the various elements of the drawing.

Report

Needless to say, I'm very interested in the effect and what you have done/will do with the drawing, so I'd greatly appreciate it if you could report your experiences to me in a way that suits you best. For reporting and requests for further information, please email me at info@stijnpeeters.com

I would like to download this image because ...

I'm a fan of your work;

I collect posters;

I'm interested in socially-engaged art;

I want to help you bring the image into the public eye;

I've seen an outdoor wall that would be suitable for the picture;

I have an idea for an educational project that this work is suitable for;
